What has NOT happened:

- Help for tenants who cannot pay their rent, they are still receiving notices to quit and summary process complaints. As a result, tenants are likely to spread the coronavirus as they are forced from their homes and take refuge with family or friends or try to access homeless shelters. Effective assistance for tenants includes:
 - Money to pay rent or utility bills for people whose employment is affected by the COVID-19 crisis;
 - Money for utility shut-off restoration once the moratorium ends and people are again faced with loss of utilities;
 - Stopping all of phases of the eviction process for all tenants including issuing notices to quit, filing of summary process actions, court hearings, eviction judgments, and court ordered move outs;
 - Prohibition of late fees;
 - Making automatic adjustments to subsidized rents;
 - Setting reasonable time limits on landlord access to rental units;
 - Creation of a rent bank to help tenants who have lost their jobs pay rent;
 - Announcing self-help evictions are not allowed now that the courts are closed.
 - Ensure judgments dismissing summary process cases are being entered.
 - Keeping the eviction moratorium in effect long enough to allow tenants whose income was reduced to apply for and obtain any relief benefits;
 - Additional lawyers to represent tenants in evictions and homeowners in foreclosure filed after the current moratoriums on filing new cases is lifted;
 - Housing counselors who can advise tenants and homeowners of the resources available to them to keep their homes after the current moratoriums are lifted as well as to avoid scams that may result in them losing money and their housing;
 - Additional mediators for Connecticut's Foreclosure Mediation Program to assist the homeowners who will be faced with foreclosure actions once the moratorium on filing new foreclosure cases is lifted;
- There has been no effort to get housing authorities to notify their tenants of new procedures and requests for rent calculations during the current pandemic. A review of housing authority websites to determine what they were telling their tenants about COVID-19 procedures and whether there was any information in Spanish. The majority still have no information about changes to housing authority procedures in light of the current crisis. Click here for a summary of what we have found.
- People continue to live in substandard conditions and cannot get assistance in moving out even though the conditions are harming them and their families.

What we are learning from our clients

- Tenants continue to call because they are being asked to show their apartments to prospective tenants without regard to COVID-19 precautions. The Center is advising tenants that under Connecticut landlord/tenant laws they have the right to refuse entrance to anyone if it would cause a safety hazard.

- Tenants continue to call the Center asking if they will be evicted because they have been laid off, are not receiving unemployment benefits yet, and are unable to pay the rent.
- Landlords continue to issue notices to quit.
- Landlords continue to file summary process complaints. 700 new summary process cases have been filed since the governor issued an order closing Connecticut's courts.
- Real estate agents have contacted the Center saying they will not show units to people who are infected or who the agents suspect are infected with the virus.
- Tenants with housing choice vouchers are having difficulty being recertified or porting their vouchers.
- Mortgage servicers continue to file foreclosure complaints.
- People without legal status continue to face deportation and are unable to access services to stay in their homes.
- People who were laid off from their jobs as the result of the pandemic are moving in with parents and friends sometimes causing overcrowding or lease violations. Foreclosures of homeowners will now affect many more people.
